President's Perspective

Tony Kiser

Greetings HVAC community!

As we are regularly returning to our face-to-face events and meetings, I want to take a moment in this plenum to offer thanks to our volunteers, sponsors, and board members. Without these individuals, the Palm Beach Air Conditioning Contractors Association would not exist as we know it.

Specifically from our April general meeting, appreciation goes to Kirby Employment Benefits for sponsoring (if you would like the opportunity to sponsor a meeting or event, please contact Pam). In addition, a big thank you to Jim Janka for sharing the 2023 regulatory changes which are on the horizon. Our April general meeting saw a wonderful turnout of happy faces, and our new meeting location at the Beach Club in Lake Worth has exceeded our expectations. Whether we are outside enjoying the tiki bar, or cooling off in the interior dining room, the staff has handled our needs effortlessly. Please take note that our next general meeting will be on Thursday, June 2.

While June is creeping closer and closer, this also means we are fast-approaching our 30th Annual High-E-Fishin-Sea Fishing Tournament. Let's not forget what a valuable networking tool PBACCA events such as this can be. This fishing expedition, which offers cash prizes for the largest Dolphin, Kingfish, and Wahoo caught, will take place on Saturday, June 11 at the Rafiki Tiki in the Riviera Beach Marina. Sounds like a dream situation for a vendor to garner uninterrupted facetime with contractors! The June 9 Captain's Meeting (at 6pm) will announce additional prizes for the event. Questions about the tournament or sponsorship opportunities can be directed to Pam.

Be seeing you soon in June,

Tony

TECHNICIAN'S CORNER

Dew Point & HVAC in South Florida

By Kelly McCann

Summertime is quickly approaching our little slice of paradise. What that means to us is less traffic, higher temperatures, high humidity and longer days. This month's Tech Corner article is devoted to understanding dew point and what we can do to mitigate its effects on air handlers, ducts, attics and grills. In short, summertime means not only the technician will be sweating, any surface that drops below the dew point will sweat too.

Dew point is defined as the temperature at which the air becomes saturated and water vapor condenses to form dew. In our example to the left we see a portion of a psychrometric chart, the conditions shown are 92°F dry bulb and 85°F wet bulb. A pleasant summer day! I should note that the dew point is not a constant, it is derived from the surrounding air condition.

Once we know two conditions, we can find the other properties of air, at that condition. In this example the dew point is 83°F - any object below 83° will have condensation form on it. Think of a cold (40°F) glass of ice water outside; 40° is below the 83°F dew point and the glass will have condensation forming on it. As the glass of water remains outside and the temperature rises; once it gets above 83° the condensation will be gone.

If we are in an attic diagnosing a sweating air handler or ductwork one useful tool is understanding the psychrometric chart. A technician can break out their sling psychrometer to find dry bulb, wet bulb and dew point of the air surrounding the duct or air handler.

When the dew point is known, we can go to work solving the issue. The easy part is knowing that we need to change the dew point, or change the surface temperature of the cabinet or ductwork. The hard part is affecting that change. A technician should check the basics: airflow (poor duct design, restricted ducts or filters), temperature difference across the coil, refrigerant charge and operation. The goal here is to make sure the system is operating correctly and doesn't have a performance issue causing the air handler cabinet to get too cold. In the attic a technician should look at the soffit, is it an open or vented attic? If so, the answer may be to seal the soffit openings. Preventing the hot humid outdoor air from getting into the attic will usually solve the problem. In some applications a dehumidifier may also be required. In my humble opinion, it is better try sealing the soffit prior to installing a dehumidifier. If you get to the point a dehumidifier is needed, the attic will need to be sealed anyway. I understand this statement on sealing the attic may be controversial; however, the science is solid. There are plenty of articles out there on Cool Attic Syndrome and Sweaty Ducts to read up on and formulate your own conclusion.

If the air handler is located in a garage and sweating, check the basics described above. Once it is determined that the equipment is operating correctly, turn your focus to the surrounding area. Does the occupant leave the garage door open? Is the property near a large body of water? Is there a source of outside air getting into the garage? The solution here may be to keep the garage closed except for entry and exit. There are other examples that you may see with condensation issues: exhaust fan venting, dryer venting, ceiling registers, and uninsulated suction lines. As we explore the different scenarios, understanding dew point and psychrometrics helps. I hope you find this article helpful...and another tool for your toolbox! As always, take care of yourselves and stay hydrated this summer – remember if you stop sweating you are dehydrated!

Another Reason to Smile

Four worms were placed in four separate test tubes:

- 1st in beer
- 2nd in wine
- 3rd in whiskey
- 4th in mineral water

The next day, the teacher shows the results:

- The 1st worm in beer, dead.
- The 2nd in wine, dead.
- The 3rd in whiskey, dead.
- The 4th in mineral water, alive and healthy.

The teacher asks the class:

- What do we learn from this experience?

And a child responds:

- Whoever drinks beer, wine and whiskey, does not have worms.

😄😄😄 Send it to your friends so they do not have worms 🍷🍷🍷🍷🍷

Become Certified

PBACCA will provide a proctor upon request for onsite testing.

The E.P.A. has established a Mandatory Technician Certification Program. Technicians are required to become certified under the mandatory program. Under the final E.P.A. rule, the sale of refrigerant will be restricted to certified technicians.

For more information on EPA testing
call Pam at 561-585-3880.

OUR MISSION: To assist and better enable PBACCA members to acquire, serve and satisfy their customers.

Apprenticeship Corner

Need Qualified Technicians?

The next time you have an opening for a technician, call the local Apprenticeship office at 561-262-7523. They can help you find a qualified apprentice to hire and enroll in the local PBACCA sponsored Apprenticeship Program offered at Palm Beach Community College. You'll be sure your employee is being taught the right skills and acquiring the training to become a productive journey man.
